STORY

An industrial harbour in Randers, Denmark was transformed into a spectacular water music show and total experience with advanced 3Dwater-projectionshow on the water, acrobats being lifted up in the air by watercanons and vertical dance on the harbour's silos. All part of an extraordinary and dramatic musical show.

Her Royal Highness Crown Princess Mary was witness to the spectacular show, which is among the biggest during European Capital of Culture Aarhus 2017, and never seen a like in Denmark.

The water show in Randers Harbour was created by artists from UK, Spain and Denmark. It has been under it's way for more than two years and is directed by Kevin Finnan, Motionhouse.

Motionhouse, the internationally-renowned British dance company, that was choreographer for the Opening Ceremony of the London 2012 Paralympic Games, took the audience on an overwhelming turn around trip. The visual dream-images were created by multimedia artists from Spanish Logela. The music was composed by International Danish star 'Oh Land' and performed by herself together with a 300-voice choir. Oh Land also stars in the show as a soloist and in the main part as the Sea Queen. Oh Land was elected Best Danish female artist, performed on David Letterman and lives in New York. She has become famous composing melodious sound with a magic and quirky universe.

Water Music is about the love between sea and land and creating a home. Randers is situated by the fjord and the river Gudenaen. It is the story about the Queen of the Sea, who meets the barger from land, and they fall in love with each other.

Water Music is attended by in all 15.000 people over two days, and is one of 12 'Full Moon' projects in the official program for the European Capital of Culture - Aarhus 2017.
